NORTH CAROLINA STUDENTS UPHOLD SUSPENSION ORDER

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 25.—(AP) The student committee recently appointed to investigate the action of the student council in suspending 13 students of the University of North Carolina on charges of gambling tonight recommended that action of the council be upheld by the student body.

The report, however, did not approve of "the methods of compelling men to testify" which were said to have been used in some instances in obtaining alleged evidence of gambling. Recommendation also was made that the sentence of one of the suspended men be increased over the period recommended by the council, which was for the spring term, on the ground that he was guilty of lying as well as gambling.

Compromise Plan Accepted By Creditors of Manley; Wife Gets Home, Auto, Cash

Creditors Will Receive
Approximately $125,000.
Income Tax Claim of $172,000 Filed.

Adoption by creditors of a compromise settlement in the personal affairs of W. D. Manley, head of the defunct Bankers' Trust company, by which creditors are to receive approximately $125,000 in satisfaction of claims of $200,000 and collateral liabilities of $500,000, was announced Friday by Harry Dodd, referee in bankruptcy, following a meeting of creditors in Mr. Dodd's office.

By terms of the agreement, Mrs. Valeria Manley, wife of the banker, retains the $100,000 Manley home on Peach Ferry road, an automobile, $17,000 in cash and 15 shares of Dupont stock valued at $3,000.

Mrs. Manley relinquished her rights to money and property under controversy, retaining only that which was specifically in her own name. The agreement turns over to creditors $7, 900 on deposit with the Citizens and Southern bank, $47,000 in the Livingston & Co. account, $50,000 and other assets of Manley & Co., $7,800 paid her by Swarthout & Appenzeller, and $5,000 of a $22,000 payment made her by Mr. Manley last July.

Referee Dodd shared the views of a majority of claimants when opposition developed, holding with creditors and J. D. Robinson, trustee, that it was better to avoid litigation and arrive at a definite settlement rather than complicate the situation further.

A claim for $272,000 in income taxes has been filed by the government against the Manley estate, and in the event this claim is upheld in the courts, the creditors will receive practically nothing as the government tax claim takes priority, it was stated.

MACON REGISTERS
LOW TEMPERATURE

Macon, Ga., March 25.—(AP)—Macon was the coldest spot in Dixie, officially, this morning, with a temperature of 3.4 degrees at 8 o'clock. It was a mean temperature for the time of the year but far below the normal average.

American Men End Bond St. Style Tyranny

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
Chicago, March 25.—Just as American women have broken away from the fashion tyranny of Paris, so American men have broken with Bond Street, London, declares Alexander Reisch, chairman of the National Tailor Designers' association, in session here.

"American men have definite ideas in cut, shapes and colors which have imparted to their tailors," he said. "The war changed the male figure. Stopped and narrow-chested clerks and indoor workers came back with broad shoulders and deep chests which are reflected in present styles. Men are becoming an inverted pyramid, wide shoulders, with hips narrowing until you come to the point of the feet. Oxford bags have gone. Even on the campus they now are a curiosity."

Fortemorning styles are conservative. There are none of the racy track stripes and flashy checks. Now even track followers and card sharks prefer more somber colors and quieter cuts.

GUARD WATCHES CONFESSED KILLER

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
New York, March 25.—Henry Judd Gray, who will plead insanity as his defense for murdering Albert Snyder, husband of his mistress, Mrs. Ruth Snyder, collapsed today in his cell after a day of hysteria by Dr. John A. Quinn.

His attorney, Samuel L. Miller, indicated the nature of his defense. Miller is retained by Gray's wife, mother and sister.

Apparently there will be no attempt to deny Gray's actual part in the crime. But the defense will attempt to show that Gray's relations with Mrs. Snyder were of a nature to unbalance him mentally.

"Physicians can testify his association with Mrs. Snyder could have resulted in such a gradual weakening of the mental tissues that the man was incapable of reasoning or exerting his own will. He became like putty in the woman's hands," Miller said.

Apparently there will be no effort by attorneys for Mrs. Snyder and Gray to cooperate in any way. The sole chance of either seems to lie in the extent to which the major guilt can be fastened on the other.

Mrs. Snyder will completely deny her share in the murder, and lay the whole blame on Gray, repudiating her first confession, in which she admitted that she incited Gray to do it and aided him in all but the actual killing.

Mrs. Snyder has little chance to collect the $25,000 insurance on the life of her husband. Should she be found guilty, regardless of the penalty, the money will go to Lorraine, the 9-year-old child of the couple.

NEW YORK VOTES TO CENSOR STAGE

Albany, March 25.—(United News.) The Wales theater padlock bill—most drastic piece of legislation the New York stage has faced since the days of Anthony Comstock—was passed by the assembly during the last hours of the 1927 legislature while New York newspapers were carrying stories that it was safely dead in committee.

Only the vetoing right arm of Governor Alfred E. Smith can now prevent the Wales bill from becoming a law authorizing local licensing committees to revoke theater licenses for producing a play deemed to be indecent.

It specifically forbids production of plays dealing with sex degeneracy or sex perversion.

It gives theater censors the power virtually to ruin financially managers

SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED FOR STATE BAR MEET

Savannah, Ga., March 25.—(P)—H. F. Lawson, of Hawkinsville, secretary of the Georgia Bar association, spent today in Savannah, making arrangements for the annual meeting of the organization which will be held at Hotel Tyber, June 2-4.

Secretary Lawson conferred with owners of the hotel and others who will have a part in making the annual meeting of the lawyers an enjoyable and successful one.

Lawson says no decision has yet been made about the speakers for the general address, but the program as arranged so far promises to be an excellent one. Of general interest will be the annual address of President Warren Grice, of Macon.

Other speakers who have already been chosen are Sam Small, of Washington, who will deliver an address on the "Constitutional Convention of 1877." Judge Richard B. Russell, of the Georgia supreme court, on "Legal History of the University of Georgia," an address by Judge R. C. Bell, of the Georgia court of appeals; a paper by John M. Graham, reporter of the supreme court of Georgia, on the subject, "Brief Making."

One of the matters to be considered by the lawyers will be the incorporation of the bar of Georgia, a question that received considerable consideration at the last convention. Another matter will be consideration of the publication of a state law journal under the auspices of the Bar association.

INSURERS HEAR COLUM SPEAK AT TRI-STATE MEET

E. H. Cullum, of Nashville, Tenn., president of the Life and Casualty Insurance Company of Tennessee, was principal speaker at the morning session of a tri-state convention of officers, agents and representatives of the company, held Friday at the Piedmont hotel.

The morning session was taken up with talks from various high officials of the company on various phases of the life and casualty insurance business. Another business session was held during the afternoon after which the one-day convention closed with the annual banquet Friday night in the main dining room of the Piedmont hotel.

More than 150 officers, agents and representatives of Georgia, Florida and Tennessee were present at the convention.

Among the speakers at the morning session were N. A. Hunter, Atlanta manager; Harry DeBorde, of Jacksonville, Fla.; E. L. Moore, of Macon; J. H. Bryan, home office inspector, with offices here; W. M. Helmick, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; A. Brera, Atlanta agent, and H. L. Vernalson, of Orlando, Fla.

Speakers on the afternoon program were W. M. Burton, of Knoxville; W. E. Hicks, of Tampa; A. S. Hutchinson, of Columbia, Tenn.; F. E. Montgomery, of Miami; C. C. Dalton, of Columbus, and J. O. McNeil, of Pensacola, Fla.

ROBERT A. HEMPHILL REPORTED IMPROVED

Robert A. Hemphill, pioneer Atlanta and a former secretary and treasurer of the Constitution Publishing company, who has been confined to his home at Peachtree and Sixteenth street by an extended illness, was reported Friday night as being considerably improved.

Mr. Hemphill is a trustee of the Decatur Orphan's Home, and a steward of the First Methodist church, having for many years contributed much to the civic and social affairs of the city.

AMERICAN FLIERS ARRIVE AT CAYENNE

Cayenne, Brazil, March 25.—The United States army fliers who are concluding a flight through South America, arrived here at 2:15 p. m. Friday from Para.

Two N. C. Mills Burn. North Wilkesboro, N. C., March 25.—(P)—The plants of the Yadin Valley Furniture Company, Inc., and Williams Furniture Company, Inc., located at Ronda, near here, were burned completely to the ground tonight, entailing an estimated loss of $150,000. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

35 AUTOS BURN IN ROME FIRE

Rome, Ga., March 25.—(P)—Fire originating in the paint room of the J. L. Adams Motor company here shortly after noon destroyed 35 autos. Damage to the building and its contents was estimated at $75,000.

STATE MUSIC CLUB TO SPONSOR BAND

Milledgeville, Ga., March 25.—(Special)—The Georgia Federation of Music Clubs in convention here following a resolution introduced by Mrs. O. A. Heide, of Atlanta, chairman of the industrial committee of the state organization, agreed to sponsor and organize a band at the Georgia State Training School for Boys, located here.

Mrs. Bailey, state president, following the adoption of the plan to sponsor the band, stated that she and twelve other members who agreed to give musical instruments. Mrs. Leone Bonner Youmans, of Savannah, made a cash donation of $50 to this fund.

The club in sponsoring the band for the boys at the training school, hope to raise a fund to purchase enough instruments for 20 members. Superintendent Ireland had been anxious to have music taught in the school but a lack of funds had prevented him from doing so. The action of the convention came as a relief to him.

Four contestants tied for first place in the music memory contest held by the junior delegates attending the convention and a second contest became necessary with a similar result and the necessity of additional prizes being purchased, there being insufficient time to hold a third contest.

Misses Ruth Dunwood, of Butler; Carrie Bell, of Sparks; Ione Cail, of Sylvania, and Edwin Peacock, of Thomasville, tied for first place at the conclusion of the music memory contest held this morning, all of them having perfect record. Miss Cail was eliminated in the second quiz during the afternoon session and three prizes were awarded.

The convention was facing adjournment this afternoon with a crowded program of business confronting it and the danger of the clock being run back to complete the many important matters yet to be transacted, adjournment having been set for early Saturday morning.

No invitation had been extended the federation today for a place to hold the 1927 convention, and this matter was causing concern among the officials.

The Georgia Military College band opened the evening program with a concert in the G. S. C. W. auditorium, which was followed by the orchestra, featuring Miss Julia Floyd, soprano, of Savannah, and Frank Sheridan, of the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York.

Judges had failed to reach a decision in the voice, violin and piano contests which were held this afternoon. It is probable that the convention will adjourn before an announcement will be made as to the winner.

CRASH VICTIM LOST.

Pedestrian Driven Through Show Window on Bumper Disappears.

Police Friday night were seeking a pedestrian believed to have been seriously injured when he rode the bumper of an automobile through a large plate glass window of a candy kitchen on Edgewood avenue near Jackson street.

The accident occurred early Friday night, according to police, when I. T. Cox, of 823 Lake avenue, was driving a light touring car east on Edgewood avenue and swerved his machine sharply to the right to avoid striking the unidentified man who was crossing the street between intersections. Cox told police, however, the radiator struck the pedestrian as the car left the street, carrying him across the curb and into the window, where he sank to the sidewalk, witnesses said, as the machine rolled back from the window. So far as the police were able to learn, this was the last seen of the unknown man.

Cox was himself cut from flying glass and was carried to Grady hospital for first aid treatment, where his hurts were not thought to be of a serious nature, attendants said.

EVILS OF LIQUOR SHOWN STUDENTS IN CITY SCHOOLS

More than 50,000 pupils in Atlanta's public schools Friday were impressed with the evils of alcoholic beverages at ceremonies conducted in the city.

This is in accordance with a provision of the state constitution requiring that one day each year be set aside for the purpose of impressing upon the minds of all public schools throughout the state.

Friday's observance in Atlanta was led by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, who spoke in many of the schools.

Plenary sessions were the order of the day in both white and colored schools, an especial effort being made through the use of posters and lectures to bring home to each boy and girl the malignant effects which alcoholic indulgence works on the human body, mentally, morally and physically.

FIVE MEN FREED BY LYONS JURY

God desecrated by these masked bands which have brought crime and death to your county, have paraded the streets of your county in robes and masks but we have never been able to identify them. Now these witnesses, the state comes to court and swear who the men were who took this poor devil from that little country church and flogged him. On March 12, 1926, you were responsible whether by your verdict this thing shall continue or come to a halt.

One of the boasts of these hooded marauders is that "you can't convict us." The shooting, killing, machine gun gangs in Chicago always have an alibi. Criminals who are unable to get up a good defense resort to that old legal, worn out term, alibi.

Enoch Giles, chief defense counsel, closed the defense argument, the jury with a plea that the defendants be given the benefit of reasonable doubt, pointing out the alibis claimed by each of the accused.

"The constitution provides that all men accused of crime be given fair and impartial trial and that is all we ask," he declared. "If Rev. Jones and Boss Osborne (a state witness) are to be believed, then leading citizens of your county who saw Mack New in his store the night of the flogging cannot be believed. Neither can the stories of the happenings at the church as told by Jones and Osborne be believed."

Character Probed.

"The state didn't dare go into Appling county where Jones lived for years to prove anything about his character. We want there because we felt the jury was entitled to know what the folks in his home county thought of him."

"The state asks you to convict these men that Toombs county may remove the stain of the floggings. Do they wish you to convict innocent men that Toombs county may get on the map? Did the newspaper reporters who told of conditions in Toombs county ask any of your good men on the jury about conditions here?"

"I believe we have as good a county as the sun shines on. I believe we have as good and pure a citizenship as the counties of Bibb, Chatham or Fulton."

The jurors announced later that acquittal was voted on the third ballot, the first vote standing 11 to 1 for a verdict of not guilty.

The crowded courtroom was tense with excitement as the jury filed in and when the verdict was read, scores of friends rushed to shake hands with the accused men.

Other Charges Collapse.

After the trial, Solicitor General Bradley said he did not think he would press other charges against the five men, although including divine worship, carrying a pistol without a license, pointing a weapon at another and carrying a pistol to a public gathering.

"There are not five men in Toombs county who welcomed this trial as we did," he said. "The state is returning" "I am glad that the jury has rendered its verdict. That jury's verdict was exactly what it should be and not one of us ever was worried. It was simple and pure persecution from the time the indictment was returned. We should be satisfied with such an attack I do not know. But we know now and the world knows that we were not guilty."

"Ninety-five per cent of the people of Toombs county are strongly opposed to the law of the mob, and the five defendants in the case are included in that ninety-five per cent."

POWERS ACT TO END TROUBLE IN BALKANS

London, March 25.—The joint agreement between Great Britain, Germany and France, to investigate the Italo-Serb differences is interpreted here as meaning that the three powers have formed an internal ring to keep European peace.

The Albanian crisis has been the cause of the step, which consists of a exchange of promises between the three governments to act on this question and other cognate ones in absolute agreement, excluding individual action. The importance of the step is emphasized by political observers here who believe it presages the developments in the Balkan question.

Following this move, which was initiated by Great Britain, it was learned in London today that Premier Benito Mussolini has sent a message to Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France thanking him for his assistance in settling the Serbian crisis over Albania and guaranteeing that all idea of conflict has been excluded from the minds of the Italian government.

AUTHOR OF BOOK TELLS ABOUT FORD

among farmers and that we were going to expose him.

"And he said, 'I think we'll upset his apple cart.'"

"Cross-examine him," said Mr. Gallagher.

"We will," said Mr. Reed.

The cross-examination consisted of one question, and its answer was that Miller had lost a lawsuit in Washington, D. C., involving payment for services to Ford.

Manager Is Called.

Black, the independent's business manager, was next. In contrast to Cameron, he stepped briskly forward, a big brief case in hand, and was almost the typical go-getter business manager, ever alert, as he began to testify.

He knew what the Independent's circulation was—it was 600,000 when the Saprio articles were printed; 28,000 in California; 1,700 in Idaho; 1,100 abroad, and even some went to Russia. He could tell later more things about the circulation if Mr. Gallagher would like to know.

"He would be ever so pleased to get the information," Gallagher wanted to know a lot of things and he agreed to dig up another brief case full of data Monday.

"Did you ever discuss with Walton Petet and Robin Hood (leaders in the farm cooperative movement) the Independent's articles about Saprio?" asked Gallagher.

"Yes, sir," said Black snappily. He was a neatly dressed young man, with bright eyes, black mustache and dark rimmed glasses.

It then developed that Hood and Petet had once written to Ford, demanding retraction of articles about Saprio or an audience; that E. G. Liebold, Ford's secretary, got the letter; referred it to Black, and Black spent most of a day talking to the gentlemen at his Dearborn office.

But court adjourned with Gallagher trying to introduce a stack of correspondence which dealt with negotiations for this audience.

The early part of the day had seen Cameron become positively talkative—using sentences with as many as 20 words in them—at times. Gallagher had broken through his guard.

How often is it Mr. Ford's custom to visit the Independent? Gallagher had asked.

"From time to time," Cameron had exclaimed.

"Do you discuss matters of national interest on those visits?"

"I try to get his philosophical views," said Cameron. "From them I write 'Mr. Ford's page' in the Dearborn Independent."

"I discussed the international banking ring but not the Independent's policy towards it," Cameron went on, answering questions which were used to prompt him each 10 or 20 words.

"I can't discuss policies with Mr. Ford," he continued. "Mr. Ford will not discuss policies."

Never Read Own Paper.

No, Ford had never read the Independent in his presence, and he never heard anyone read it to Ford.

"I've tried to get him to read it," Cameron added wistfully, "but I don't recall I ever succeeded."

At a time when there was a demand for a retraction (of the Saprio articles), Cameron said, "Mr. Ford came into the office and I told him that I had a demand for a retraction of certain things published in the Independent. I tried to tell him what it was and he waved his hand and said, 'Well, if we are going to take them back, and if they are right, stick to them.'"

Cameron testified to several other things—but nothing that would remove from the highest place among the day's high lights the picture of the only millionaire frequently visiting the assembling plant of the Dearborn Independent's literature factory as often as "from time to time," waving his hand and ringing a change on the good old slogan: "Be sure you're right; then go ahead."

Landscape Work Features 'Home Beautiful' Exhibit

Work of the landscape artist will have a big part in the success of the "Home Beautiful" exhibit, which The Constitution and cooperating merchants will offer the public, beginning Sunday, April 3, and lasting through April 10.

It often happens that home owners concentrate all their efforts on the interior of the home, and have little regard for the appearance of the land surrounding it. Many an attractive home has the most unlovely approach.

Mr. R. H. Thomas, nationally known home expert, has had the landscape possibilities in view when selecting the six houses which will form a part of this, the fourth annual event.

Flowers, shrubbery and hedges will be given the most careful attention. This feature has been especially stressed at Avondale Estates, where three of the six homes are located. The landscape artist there has been busy on the whole development during an entire winter.

The exhibit will open each day at 1 o'clock and will last until 10 o'clock at night. Entrance is free and obliging hostesses will be present at all the houses to greet visitors and supply any information wanted.

Judging from the interest shown by merchants and by the many inquiries made as to the progress of the work,

Promotion hadn't always passed him by

HE COULD remember when he led the company sales force—when the whole office had called him "the coming man." . . . What a difference now! He was barely getting along—daily slipping deeper into despair! His pep, his energy, all his old-time fight were gone. His prospects shattered! Ambition, itself, had fled! What had happened? What terrible thing was dragging him down?

Constipation is the cause of much unhappiness and ill-health. It wrecks strength. It saps vitality. It sicken the mind and body! It handicaps every man and woman upon whom it fastens its deadly hold! Yet, it can be relieved—yes, prevented! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring safe relief—prompt prevention!

Why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN

It is "bulk" that relieves constipation. The bulk in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the intestines—at the same time it gently distends them, purifying, cleansing, removing wastes and poisons. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is too small to be effective—often nothing is accomplished. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN—because it is 100% bran, or "bulk"!

No need to risk habit-forming drugs!

How different is ALL-BRAN from dangerous drugs and pills—whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective! This sometimes causes serious injury.

ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream. Fruits or honey, added, make it a special treat. Let it soak a few moments to bring out its full crisp flavor. Mix it with other cereals. In soups. Try the recipes on every package. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Don't risk part-bran substitutes. At best, they can be but partially effective. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Bells Ring in Birthday Sale of Haverty Company

City-Wide Mystery Solved on Store's 42nd Anniversary

"It's a long time that has no turning back," and by the same sign it's a long time that has no final solution. Which brings us to Atlanta's now famous "mystery bells," which now are no longer tokens of secret import but instead are chimes of prosperity that call the city to the Haverty Furniture company.

There—the cat's out of the bag at last. The bells are the bells of the Haverty company, which for the past week has worked an entire city's curiosity up to the boiling point, and in this issue of The Constitution announced that the thousands of handy little bells that are now in use in homes all over the section are heralds of the 42nd anniversary of the Haverty company.

HUNDREDS ATTEND Y. W. C. A. OPEN HOUSE

With a special program arranged, hundreds of Atlantans took advantage of "open house" at the downtown headquarters of the Atlanta Y. W. C. A. Friday afternoon and inspected the newly created offices at 37 Auburn avenue.

The membership committee with Mrs. B. L. Buzg, chairman, in charge sponsored the movement and were hostesses to the visitors Friday afternoon.

A committee of the Girl Reserves, an organization of the Y. W. C. A., acted as guides and accompanied the visitors through the building.

HIGH CO. EMPLOYEES ARE GUESTS AT DANCE

The J. M. High company was host to its employees and their friends at a dance given at the Druid Hills golf club Thursday night. In addition to dancing, an entertainment featured by steps by Billy Carr, of Miami and New York, was given. Among High officials attending the event were John Mench, A. R. Dorsen, Paul and G. C. Jones and other executives and their wives.

'Dope' Conviction Separates Mother From Son, Husband

Mrs. H. H. Hartley, 50, pleaded guilty Friday morning in United States district court—and as a result of that plea of guilty must leave her ten-year-old son and white-haired husband for nine months.

"Judge, don't send me away," the mother pleaded with Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley on his passing sentence. "I want to stay here and take care of my ten-year-old boy."

Judge Sibley's eyes, grimly accented to convey human emotion through his long service on the federal court bench, softened as he explained to the mother just why he was sending her away.

"You are not in a condition to be of any good to the boy and he to you at present, but in two months' time you will be writing me a letter of thanks for what I am doing," Judge Sibley said.

Mrs. Hartley entered a plea of guilty to possessing and selling morphine. Judge Sibley asked her: "When was the last time you had some narcotics?" to which she replied, "three days ago."

The district attorney's office is awaiting instructions from the attorney general as to what women's institution Mrs. Hartley is to be sent to.

MRS. WELLBORN'S BODY TAKEN TO ANNISTON

Mrs. Mary Wellborn, wife of Governor M. B. Wellborn, of the Federal Reserve bank, died early Friday morning at her residence, 1905 Peachtree street, following an illness of more than six years.

The body of Mrs. Wellborn was taken to Anniston, Ala., Friday afternoon. Funeral services will be held Sunday morning from Grace Episcopal church and interment will follow in an Anniston cemetery.

Mrs. Wellborn, a native of Rome, Ga., came to the city 12 years ago with her husband from Anniston, Ala., where he assumed direction of the local Federal Reserve bank. During her residence here she has taken an active part in the affairs of the St. Luke's Episcopal church.

She is survived by her husband; two daughters, Mrs. James F. Matson, of Anniston and Miss Mary Wellborn, and three sons, John, Walter and William Wellborn, all of this city.

RAGSDALE VETOES COUNCIL MEASURE ON AUTO TRUCKS

Veto of an ordinance passed Monday by city council, which was designed to permit fire service trucks to proceed along Atlanta streets at a rate of speed equal to that of passenger automobiles, was announced Friday by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale's office.

In failing to approve the paper, the mayor pointed out that such a provision would not be in his opinion consistent with safety. He also quoted a report of the Atlanta Safety council showing that despite the 15-mile speed limit already prescribed for such vehicles, the ratio of accidents for light commercial vehicles last year was 44.8 per 1,000, whereas the ratio for passenger vehicles was 25.3 per 1,000. The ratio for trucks was 25.3 per 1,000, and for fire trucks 24.8 per 1,000. All other trucks were approved by the city's chief executive.

LUCKY MISTAKE IN NAME FREES LIQUOR SUSPECT

There is a whole lot in a name. Take it from Percy Brantley, of Gilmer county, who went free Friday morning in United States district court when it was found that the spelling of his name did not exactly coincide with the spelling of the defendant's name in the complaint and warrant.

The name in the complaint and warrant, in which manufacture of whiskey in 1921 was charged, was spelled Brantley. When Brantley, through Clark Ray, of Atlanta, his attorney, cited a misnomer, and Judge Samuel H. Sibley, on pronouncing the two names, found them dissimilar. Brantley was released. Another indictment for the alleged offense is said to be impossible, as the statute of limitations proves immunity after three years have elapsed, it was said.

BALMY WEATHER AGAIN PREDICTED FOR SECTION TODAY

Continued clear weather, with slightly higher temperatures, is expected today, according to C. P. von Hermon, local official meteorologist. Temperatures today are expected to range between 42 and 70 degrees.

High and low temperatures Friday were 60 and 57 degrees, respectively.

With a return to spring weather Friday hundreds of Atlantans took advantage of the pleasant day and were seen in and about the city's many recreation parks. Several thousand golf fans also took an afternoon off and witnessed the second round of the southern open golf tournament, now under way at East Lake course.

PLAN HIGHWAY JAUNT AT GRIFFIN MEETING

Plans for the Jacksonville-Atlanta motorcade, celebrating the opening of the longest stretch of continuous paving in Georgia, from Stone Mountain to Perry, will be perfected at a meeting in Griffin April 1, it was announced Friday following the conference of the executive committee of the Association of County Commissioners.

The motorcade is now being organized by the Jacksonville May 24 to arrive in Atlanta May 25.

Preliminary arrangements for the motorcade were reported at a meeting of the Jacksonville May 24 to arrive in Atlanta May 25.

Among arrangements made by Secretary Gelders to give national publicity to the opening of the highway was the opening of the highway at Macon Tuesday night over the Mercer university station and in Atlanta Wednesday morning.

The Fitzgerald concert band will play at stops along the route of the motorcade and will supply music for the radio broadcasting. Judge M. M. Allison, president of the Dixie highway association, and other nationally prominent good roads boosters will speak at both places.

Plans tentatively made at the meeting Friday include a ceremony of completing the paving at a point north of Griffin where the two links of the long stretch meet. A narrow strip will be left open by the highway department to be closed formally at the ceremony, after which the motorcade will drive over it and on to Atlanta for a celebration Wednesday night.

Fred Houser, secretary of the Association of County Commissioners and of the convention and tourist bureau, will be in charge of Atlanta's reception of the motorcade. Sore on leg healed after years of suffering

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10—"I just want to let you know what your Resinol has done for me. For many years I had a bad sore on my leg. I had tried a number of different treatments, including Electric Baths and different recommended salves. I suffered terribly at times as my work compelled me to be on my feet a great deal. Several weeks ago, I saw Resinol in the paper and in desperation I bought a small jar of this Ointment, not believing it would do me any good. However, after using it for one week I was surprised to see the ulcer was healing and by the time I had finished the second jar the healing was complete. I am glad to tell the world what Resinol Ointment has done for me and I will be glad to recommend it to any sufferer." (Signed) Max Ender, 63 1/2 Jersey Street.

Town Drunkards Face Chain Gang Under New Order

Under an order issued Friday at police station by Chief of Police James L. Beavers, all "town drunkards" who at least once a week appear at police station charged with being intoxicated will henceforth be turned over to the state court with a view to sending them to the chain gang, it was stated at police station.

All such characters, known to be habitually heavy drinkers and regular visitors to police station shall no longer be released on collateral bond of small sums, but shall be treated as vagrants and will be held in bond in keeping with the charge, according to Chief Beavers.

IDLERS, LOITERERS INDICTED BY JURY IN CLEAN-UP DRIVE

Continuing the drive against idlers and loiterers, gamblers, bootleggers and other persons who have no visible means of support, inaugurated by Chief of Police James L. Beavers and Solicitor General John A. Boykin, the Fulton county grand jury Friday returned eight indictments charging vagrancy against eight defendants and a fine charging gaming against five defendants.

Those named in vagrancy indictments are, J. Bussey, Ed Everett, Joe Hogg, Bill Jackson, A. J. (alias Stutz) Jack, in Charlie Moon, Oscar D. Smith and Harry Stephens.

Gaming indictments are the result of a recent raid on a garage near Tenth street in which five persons were arrested while playing pool, according to attaches in the solicitor's office.

Those indicted are: Bob Hogg, T. C. House, G. C. Spruel, P. R. House and J. J. Bussey.

ATLANTAN CITED FOR HIS HEROISM IN BARRACKS FIRE

In recognition of heroism during a fire at Quantico, in February, Robert S. Wilcox, former marine who resides with relatives in Atlanta, was cited Friday by Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps, in orders received here by Captain J. M. Swinnerton.

Wilcox, a corporal, braved flames in an attempt to save Miss Eleanor Griffin, 19-year-old girl, when a conflagration broke out in the quarters of Lieutenant R. H. Holderby. The girl died two days later. Lieutenant Holderby and his son also succumbed to burns.

Corporal Wilcox, who lives at 206 Georgia avenue, enlisted at Savannah in February, 1923. After serving aboard several ships, he was appointed fire marshal's orderly at Quantico. He is now assigned to the Fleet Marine Corps reserve.

LOAN BROKER FACES USURY INDICTMENT

Five misdemeanor indictments and a true bill charging usury were returned Friday by the Fulton county grand jury against P. P. Jackson, Atlanta loan broker.

Indictments aver that the defendant charged usurious rates of interest on small loans, contrary to laws of the state which fix the legal rate of interest.

Several Atlanta loan brokers or so-called "loan sharks" are facing indictments in Fulton superior court on similar charges. No dates have been set for the trials.

The grand jury's investigation into the matter was directed by J. L. R. Boyd, general counsel of the Atlanta Legal Aid society, who also is a member of the grand jury.

The grand jury's investigation into the matter was directed by J. L. R. Boyd, general counsel of the Atlanta Legal Aid society, who also is a member of the grand jury.

Flames which threatened a number of downtown business establishments early Friday were brought under control after they had partially destroyed a two-story building at 125 1/2 South Pryor street, claiming an estimated damage of $20,000, a part of which was covered by insurance.

Although it was learned that the blaze broke out in the rear of the second floor, the origin had not been determined late Friday night.

Officials of the Simmons Plating company, which owns the structure, and occupies an office and stock room, reported that its stock had not been damaged nor the regular routine of business disturbed by the fire.

The heaviest loss was sustained by the Gate City Supply company, dealers in fraternal order equipment, while other occupants of the building were the Hastings Pressing club and C. O. Lyle, dealer in soda fountain supplies.

GOVERNOR HONORS ALABAMA REQUEST FOR TWO FUGITIVES

The governor also issued a requisition on Florida's chief executive for return of Cater Davis, alias Cate Davis, to Thomas county, Georgia, to answer to charges of stealing an automobile. The requisition was issued upon the application of Solicitor General C. E. Hay, of Thomasville.

DADDIES' DAY PROGRAM WILL BE OBSERVED

Firebug Is Menace To You; Guard Against His Work

In protecting yourself financially against fire hazards there is an element of danger that few people take into consideration. A headline in a recent issue of The Constitution told the story, the caption reading: "Work of Incendiary Seen in Blaze Here."

Chief W. B. Cody, of the fire department, announced some time ago that incendiaries were at work on a big scale in Atlanta. These persons face heavy penalties if they are detected—but that doesn't help the man or woman who perishes in the fire they light.

All this leads up to the reminder that the famous $7,500 travel accident insurance policy which The Constitution offers its readers protects them against death in burning buildings. That's an important and an exclusive feature of the policy, but it goes much further and throws a financial safeguard about the policy holder in traffic accidents.

You know that hundreds of persons are killed and maimed almost daily in Atlanta and this section of the country. You know that your time may come today; that disaster may strike when you least expect it.

The $7,500 travel accident policy, which costs only $1.25 per year—provides for payments of sums ranging downward from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain specified accidents; heavy cash amounts for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity resulting from the accidents included in the policy.

FUNDAMENTALISTS PLAN CONVENTION HERE DURING MAY

Plans for holding an international convention of the World's Christian Fundamentalists' association here in May will be completed at a conference of local leaders early next week, it was learned Friday afternoon.

W. B. Riley, of Minneapolis, president and founder of the association, is expected to arrive in Atlanta Monday morning and will immediately go into conference with local leaders. It was stated. He will be entertained at a luncheon at the Ansley hotel Monday at noon.

CENTRAL WILL GIVE EXCURSION RATES

The Central of Georgia railroad Friday announced that special week-end excursion rates from Atlanta to various Georgia resort cities will be inaugurated on its lines beginning April 2. Frederick J. Robinson, general passenger agent, stated that bulletins giving details of the exact fare to various points included on the schedule would be published soon by the railroad.

SECOND BAPTISTS PLAN "DOLLAR DAY"

Sunday will be "dollar day" at the Second Baptist church. At the same time an interesting missionary program will be given and all members are expected to bring $1 for missions. L. Witherspoon, chairman of the program committee and John S. Spalding is Sunday school superintendent.

The theme of the pastor, Dr. Carter Helm Jones, who has recently returned from Jacksonville, where he conducted a series of meetings, will be "At the Tomb of Lazarus." This is a continuation of the series of "Word Pictures from the Gallery of Jesus," which the pastor has been giving to congregations at the twilight services, from 5 to 6 o'clock.

A crash of trains, a wreck of public carriers, a collision between automobiles, the speeding wheels of on-rushing cars, burning buildings may take your life today! Protect your own income against abrupt halt and your wife and children against financial want.

Appearing regularly in this paper, advertisements describe the insurance offer in detail. Watch for them.

This $7,500 travel, $2,000 auto and $1,000 pedestrian accident policy is issued only to subscribers of The Daily Constitution and is available to subscribers' family between the ages of 15 and 70 at $1.25 per policy per year. Open to both old and new subscribers.

One who is now taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution, or will subscribe for same through carrier in Atlanta or suburbs, or through an out-of-town carrier or dealer, paying for the paper weekly, monthly or otherwise, is a subscriber and is eligible.

Those taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution by mail, either through a postoffice or rural route delivery, and all those subscribing through the twin-word building contest for one year are eligible by paying $1.25 per year per policy above the subscription price.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation. If beneficiary is desired, full Christian name must be given and the relation of same to the insured.

YOUTH INDICTED IN ALLEGED THEFTS FROM "FRAT MATES"

Indictments charging larceny from the house, a felony and a misdemeanor in connection with the passing of a worthless check were returned Friday by the Fulton county grand jury against J. B. MacQueen, who recently posed as a student from Leland Stanford university and is alleged to have "fleece" several students at the Georgia School of Technology and Emory university recently.

MacQueen is under arrest in Birmingham, Ala., and will be sent for by Atlanta county authorities to face trial at an early date.

While in the city several months ago, MacQueen visited the two colleges and posed as a fraternity man from the California university, securing the confidence of "frat mates" whom he later asked to cash checks for him. He also "borrowed" a number of suits of clothes before his ruse was discovered.

The indictment charging larceny from the house alleges that on February 24 he stole a suit of clothes from the property of A. H. Caesar, Jr., of 27 Fifth street.

Senator E. E. Cocke Has Narrow Escape As Train Hits Car

Dawson, Ga., March 25.—(Special.) State Senator E. E. Cocke, of the eleventh district, barely escaped death near here yesterday evening when the coupe in which he was riding was completely demolished by a west-bound Central of Georgia passenger train running from Macon to Montgomery. The crossing is not on a public highway, but is on a road near one of Cocke's farms.

He is able to be on the streets this morning but appears to be greatly shocked and has numerous bruises on his body.

MAN WANTS TO TELL HIS JOY TO THE WORLD

Sore on leg healed after years of suffering

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10—"I just want to let you know what your Resinol has done for me. For many years I had a bad sore on my leg. I had tried a number of different treatments, including Electric Baths and different recommended salves. I suffered terribly at times as my work compelled me to be on my feet a great deal. Several weeks ago, I saw Resinol in the paper and in desperation I bought a small jar of this Ointment, not believing it would do me any good. However, after using it for one week I was surprised to see the ulcer was healing and by the time I had finished the second jar the healing was complete. I am glad to tell the world what Resinol Ointment has done for me and I will be glad to recommend it to any sufferer." (Signed) Max Ender, 63 1/2 Jersey Street.

THE CRISIS IN CHINA.

The government of the United States could do nothing else than protest to the Chinese nationalist government for the killing of its nationals by irresponsible rioters at Nanking.

It is assured that the nationalist leaders will do all in their power not only to punish those guilty of these outrages, but to restrain any future assaults upon American civilians or armed forces. The nationalist took rigid action some time ago when an assault was made upon Americans. It will be recalled those guilty were summarily executed.

The sympathy of America has been almost wholly behind the nationalist movement. In trying to work out a democracy in the face of political conditions that exist in China, unlike those in any other country on earth, the people of this country have been deeply anxious for the movement's success.

China has been ruthlessly exploited for generations. Composed as it is of a large number of provinces of separate governments, and without a strong central government, the task of the nationalists has been a difficult one. And yet they have had a steady series of victories lately.

It is to be regretted that the anti-anti feeling should, following these victories, so overcome discipline that the good that has been accomplished may be so quickly overcome, and will be unless steps to repair the great insult be immediate and effective.

PLANTING TIME.

In western Texas, Arizona and New Mexico the farmers broadcast cotton, just as some of the farmers of the southeast broadcast peas, and rye and oats.

They grow cotton at an expense of ten to twelve cents a pound of lint. They make money therefore at the present spot prices.

In those states, without commercial fertilizers, the cotton farmers average 400 pounds of lint to the acre. In Georgia the average is less than 200 pounds to the acre.

Any farmer of the southeast, therefore, can see that he cannot compete with the southwestern cotton farmer unless he can make cotton a clear surplus.

In order to do that he must grow his feed and food, to meet all his consumptive demands, and owe nothing at the harvesting season.

Therefore in this day of making farm programs it is essential that farmers prepare first of all to "live at home."

This means to provide that their barns shall be full of corn, and their smokehouses full of meat, and their yards full of poultry.

There is not a farmer in Georgia, in distress today who has a full barn and a full smokehouse.

There are farmers in distress, and many of them, but upon inquiry they will be found to be those who would not listen to the rules of reason, and who placed their activities and faith upon cotton, and cotton only.

Now—right now—is the time to act. The farmer—whatever may be his financial condition—is foolish who refuses to raise his own feed and food crops, and who refuses to stay out of debt by "buying from himself" what he has heretofore been buying from his supply merchant.

ADMIRAL BRISTOL'S TRANSFER.

Reprinted on this page from The New York Times is a remarkable editorial tribute to Admiral Mark Bristol, who since the world war has been the high commissioner at Constantinople, and as such one of the most useful and commanding diplomatic figures in the world. He has been transferred to the command of our Asiatic fleet.

The deserved tribute of The Times and the changes in assignment that occasioned it are of peculiar and pleasing interest to Atlanta. Admiral Bristol is not only well known here, but Mrs. Bristol lived in Atlanta at the time of their marriage.

Admiral Bristol has, since the war, been in the most difficult, exacting and delicate diplomatic post in the world, charged with negotiations with a government holding strained relations, and with watching over the rights of Americans and in securing favorable treatment for our schools and missions in Turkey. He did the work admirably—so much so in fact that he has been time and again openly commended by former Secretary Hughes and by Secretary Kellogg.

He distinguished himself in high command on the sea before being called to diplomacy. He now returns to high naval command after an experience that will make him of greater usefulness to his government than ever before, and in a field where his long experience will be of invaluable service to the government.

TRAMMELL'S TRAGIC DEATH.

Lee Trammell, whose tragic death followed a grade-crossing collision Thursday, was not only one of the best-known bankers in Georgia, being president of the Bank of Madison, but was one of the most constructive and progressive citizens of the state.

He took a deep interest in agricultural reconstruction and encouraged the farmers of Morgan county to balance their production and particularly to "live at home."

In this respect he had performed a most useful service, for Morgan is one of the best agricultural counties in the state, and the Morgan farmers, on the whole, are perhaps freer from distress.

Mr. Trammell was a director of the peach exchange, being heavily interested in orchards, and was not only an earnest advocate of cooperative marketing, but was a leader in encouraging the farmers of Georgia to standardize, cooperate, farm better and market more intelligently. He will be greatly missed in his home community and throughout the state.

Grade crossings continue to exact their toll despite the Georgia law that requires a driver of any vehicle to come to a full stop before crossing, thus focusing the attention of the driver upon any hazard that may exist.

The truth is, grade-crossing tragedies will never cease until such crossings are entirely eliminated.

New York states passed a $300,000 bond issue two years ago for the one purpose of eliminating all crossings. The railroads are co-operating and that state will shortly be entirely free of them. It can be done and it should be done, not only in New York, but in Georgia and everywhere.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

New York, March 25.—New York not having enough to worry about has begun to lose sleep over the question of whether or not a college education pays. The heads of several leading metropolitan employment services say the diploma is no longer the best stepping stone to business success and that the "cultured retard" in a university is just a bit of a handicap.

Did Gloria Swanson go to college? She did.

Did Adolph Zukor study trigonometry? He did.

Did the Bambino ever wrinkle his forehead over the intricacies of differential calculus? He did.

Did "Tex" Rickard, or his female mental equivalent, "Tex" Guinan, sit up nights musing over their mental processes until they could tell the difference between an iambic foot and a paralytic paraplegism? They did.

If Henry Ford, the Eminent Sparrow-Kradiator of Detroit, had ever flirted with the multi-provoking peculiarities of syntax, do you suppose his Dearborn Independent would have the circulation it enjoys today on the newstands of Palestine?

About all any college can do for a young man under the existing dispensation, is to teach him to spell God in lower case, tote a hip flask without walking lopsided, and swap elegant badinage with a truculent traffic cop.

One of the ten-trim Brothers of the Metropolitan Free Lance Brigade occupies a "stew-dyo" in the Gramercy park section where he is wearing out his young life writing erotic verse in the brand of Gaudier, an English that would bring tears to the eyes of a night club hostess.

Everyone knows he's a misfit, except his wife who has high hopes, firmly believing that when the conspiracy among publishers to keep her husband down has finally been dispelled, Halasz will have to move over in the Hall of Fame to make way for Willie.

Thus, every Monday morning the postman answers the doorbell and smiles at the butcher, baker, milkman and gas collector, in an endeavor to persuade them to be less mercenary and to share a little of the unbounded faith in the ability and the ultimate success of her goggle-eyed spouse.

I found him the other night sitting in a soiled dressing gown in a litter of books and papers, puffing at a Camel-hair cigar and more cheerful than he had been in many a long day.

"Well," said the brave fellow, "the gloom has been lifted. There's a ray of sunshine lighting up the old road."

"Sell a story?"

"No-o-o," he said, with his soft-crushed Egg-Sandwich, "the Missus has taken a job."

The man who perfected the typewriter has a lot to answer for.

A newspaper man moved into a ginger-bread apartment house recently, in the Park Lane section. A canopy extends beyond the front door and to the rear of the building, a juvenile patriot at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the fourth day of July. There are three hall attendants in uniform, three elevator runners, a bevy of switchboard operators and enough gold-laid and ornate ostentation to equip half a dozen Tut's Toys.

The newspaper Brother had to get letters of recommendation from Al Smith, Jimmy Walker, his political and social friends, and the president of the bank before he could sign a lease to take possession of a 634-B width, boy's size apartment.

After he had been living there a week a young lady moved into the apartment adjoining. She had henna hair, a nose like the tip of a lance, and a pair of violet eyes, a breath like new-mown hay, a chow dog, a liver-colored limousine and no visible means of support.

The newspaper man's days after her advent she pulled a party and proceeded to make Rome howl.

The newspaper man was incensed. He complained to the owner of the building. If he had to fork over a bushel of gilt-edged references, how come a Lady Like That could horn into the building?

"She had one more reference than you did," said the mystified owner. He had a letter from John Roach Stram.

There's no use trying. You can't convince the average New York real estate owner that a beautiful young woman with a wedding ring can muster better references than the average business or professional man. (Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

An Admiral-Diplomat.

(From the New York Times.)

News that Admiral Bristol is soon to be relieved of his duties as high commissioner at Constantinople, and to assume command of our Asiatic fleet, should not pass without a word in praise of a remarkable diplomatic service. Ever since the war Admiral Bristol has been detailed to duties for which naval officers are not supposed to be trained. But in a very difficult position, with all kinds of vexatious and complicated problems thrust upon him, he has so borne himself as to win plaudits from his superior officers and from the department of state.

In 1924 Secretary Hughes wrote a letter to the navy department speaking in high terms of "the skill and patience" with which Admiral Bristol had conducted the negotiations. The reference was to an agreement to pass upon the claims of Americans and Turks growing out of the war.

The admiral has been in Constantinople, at the meeting point of all nations, since the war. His position was irregular, certainly it was delicate, inasmuch as the United States had not reestablished diplomatic relations with Turkey. But as high commissioner he was able to keep in touch with the Turkish government, to watch over the rights of American residents, and to secure by his courtesy and sagacity favorable treatment for our missions and schools in Turkey.

To all visiting Americans, Admiral Bristol has shown himself a model of hospitality and kindness. Doubtless he will return to high command at sea with the satisfaction of a man who has done his job with a professional career. But he must know that he has made his mark as a diplomatic servant of his government, and has left enduring recollections with all of his fellow-citizens who have had occasion at Constantinople to make proof of his genial and gentlemanly qualities.

The "pep" you have for being dumb is due to words that will not come. While one who really is far dumber, because he talks is called a "comer."

The moral is not hard to retort: We praise the owl but kick the parrot.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Big Figures in the Fight For the Republican Nomination Next Year.

All indications point to a very quiet summer in the field of politics. Congress will be off the program and 40 states will have new legislatures, having ground their grists, will have become scotched and silent.

December the people will not need to look to Washington for a respite, farm relief, or fun. They must wait for the intervention of the "home brew" discussion of what that oughtn't to be and what ought to be that isn't!

Naturally, with an approach of 1928 and its presidential contest, there will be widespread talk among those who take interest in politics. Men and party programs will be discussed, but not in any organized or official way.

This far ahead of party decisions it is hardly the case that the presidential nomination in either party will be the result of a caucus or a convention that reason those who hope to be the eventually chosen nominees are going to be very cautious and go through their stuff behind smoke screens as usual and as fully as possible. No one of them is eager to get out into the open prematurely and have their target for all the brickbats his potential rivals can lay their hands on.

Lowden Is Laying Low.

It is assumed as a matter of course that Governor Frank Lowden will be a pronounced aspirant in the republican contest, and will seek to assemble his band of followers in the great west. If the grangers have got to be very cautious and go through their alleged opposition subsidies on their own terms, they can make Lowden formidable by solidly backing him. His friends are claiming that he will so happen and that the republicans of the nation will be made to understand that their one best bet is to win the nomination by supporting Lowden.

But the veto of the McNary-Haugen bill that was expected to set off a startling explosion of farm fireworks has done nothing so spectacular. It was received throughout the farm belts with quite general and stolid indifference. That silence may be more significant than is at once apparent. It may be the grim and serious silence that often precedes a destructive physical or moral earthquake.

Lowden evidently thinks such is the condition of the country that the time due arrives to "loose the winds" of farmers' fury. They only can fill his sails, and drive his ship up to the headwinds of the "farmers' party" exists in fact.

Butler Will Be Boomed.

It is becoming more certain daily that Dr. Nick Butler is to be strong-boomed in the republican primaries and convention of next year. The Butler-Borah debate on prohibition is to be a means to present him to the wets of the republican party as the ideal candidate for the presidential nomination. And the night when he clashes with Borah, representing the dries in the party, will be the night that we have heard of the Butler boom throughout the country.

The real leaders of the opposition to prohibition are not so crass as to believe that the real leaders of the opposition to prohibition are not so crass as to

Borah, however, unless by thrashing the party preference, than that of being the favorite son of a small western state, he could be dismissed from consideration.

He knows the value of every card in his hand, and he knows that if he is to play the game for all they are worth in this presidential game. Sure that his appeal must be a national one if he is to win, he is not going to let the prohibition, which is the most intensely national issue of the period. With it he can enter the field wielding a veritable sword of Saladin. Better watch Borah; he is hot dog!

THE IRREFRAGABLE ORDER OF OPTIMISTS.

Last month we listed here the prize pessimists, or at least the outstanding ones. We invited readers to send in further nominations if the list was not sufficiently comprehensive, but with keen foresight, we inserted in the invitation a clause prohibiting the nomination of any regular physician. Aside from this restriction readers had full liberty to express their views. The votes, therefore, have been slow to come in. It seems that the plain people, when they can't voice their views about regular doctors, have little derogatory to say.

But here is a remarkable remark, an extraordinary bit of testimony from a reader who, I like to believe, is one of a goodly number, if they will only let us hear from them, who qualify for membership in the Irrefragable Order of Optimists.

"My doctor," I have told me often that I can rely absolutely on what you say. I don't believe in the loss of moral leadership by the white race, ourselves included.

Jamesstown, N. Y.

Why try to convert ignorant and women of other parts of the world to a civilization such as ours which only brings to them in the last analysis a condition ten times worse than their previous state? I have in mind particularly the inhabitants of the South Sea Islands and the decimation and depravity they have suffered from the white man's contact with the white man.

Nothing can justify a policy which injures those to whom it is directed. On the other hand, it is equally unjust to your impairment except the undeniable facts which you do not produce. It is not fair to charge the better elements of our civilization with the iniquities of run-running, commercialization or unscrupulous exploitation of native peoples.

"Contact with the white man," suggests the query, what kind of white man? Think of the best neighbors you know. I don't know whether it would not be a positive good for such characters to be duplicated in any other section of the globe.

Again, the logic of your argument, if applied, would condemn your past effort for the world's illumination and end efforts for the future. The history of the world is a record of the large part of the interchange of ideas and of the ultimate survival of deserving ideas. Your origin and mine goes back to the savages in whose forests and coasts of northern and western Europe.

I do regret that they were reached and influenced by Christian

TEST YOUR CHILD.

A Tired Business Man remarked to his wife:

"If our two boys don't stop disturbing my day of rest by teasing me, I'll have them put in a cage. I'll have to give up next Sunday's golf and go. When I was a boy no child ever thought of dragging his parents to Sunday school."

Well, the T. B. M. went. He got a surprise. Things aren't done now the way they were then. T. B. M. was a boy. In this day of the T. B. M. Henry Park Schaeffer's habit-craft adventures were the attractions for the boys.

Why do you suppose this Tired Business Man saw? Queer sort of thing—a combination of a manual training shop, a debating society and a Sunday classroom. The Sunday he arrived he saw the habit trustworthiness being taught. The boys were making a poster each of nine solidly confident, the keystone being "I." The arch wouldn't stand up until the "I" stone was in position. Placing this "I" sets the children to work thinking, "If I do my part, he'll do his." The Bible stories for the day were centered around Judges 7. Matt. 23:14-23.

During the lesson moral fiber tests were given—simple, practical, everyday sort of problems which come up in the life of the child. Theoretical, or abstract, or way off in the distance sort of business, here's one adapted from Schaeffer's idea which interests me.

One day a boy named Nickles and Panes of Glasses, I have called it. As a thinking parent it will interest you. Try it on any child under the age of 15. You will be very much surprised at the answers which you get—and so perhaps will I—when you clip out the

He was playing in splendid form and keeping on even terms with perfect scores with now and then a birdie thrown in to ease the monotony.

The Twenty-second infantry is planning a good hard workout for Bert Schloff's Crackers at the Fort Sumner when the Southern leaguers meet there tomorrow. Schloff is anxious to show Bert something good in his twisting line when he starts either Hill, Hill or Colson. Miller is a first baseman and pitcher. He has been in the islands against the navy, Marines and independent teams. Colson also did some good chinking during teams like the University of California, which usually beats the islands and the Pacific Fleet. Baseball is a good game in the Hawaiian islands, and can be played by the natives. Hill knows a lot about Atlanta semi-pro ball and is sufficient to say he would be good in anybody's class AA team. The Fort infield is working on the line of the Grimes' second, Ted and Short, Simpson at first and Ted and Banks at third. There is a world of dependable pitching material in the Southern league. Grimes and Waldrip among some of the best in Atlanta. The outfield, Frank Smith, Johns and Gunn will be well known. The Southern league umpire will handle the incident Sunday. The game will be called at 2:30 p. m.

Crackers Beat Rochester, 9 to 8---Tech Wins, 14 to 1

Hollis McLaughlin Faces Locals Today

Gilbert Singles in Tenth With Bases Full to Win—Francis and Love Hurl Game for Crackers.

BY TOM THOMPSON.

After donating two runs in the third on an error by Brock, the Atlanta Crackers came from behind on the force of sheer fight and took a 10 inning contest from the Rochester Indians, 9-8 at Spiller's peanut and pop stand Friday afternoon.

The last frames involving these two outfits will take place this afternoon about 2:30 o'clock and at the same place. The fans are likely to see Hollis McLaughlin, the left-handed pitcher, facing his former teammates at one time or another during the game. Lennon and Shoffner are the other two pitchers scheduled to be used by Rochester.

Bert did not signify Friday who he would start. Cave or Rogers are likely to have a fling in the opening assignment, however.

The homecoming demonstrated several things. One of them was a paralyzing ability to score when the scores were needed, another was a ragged fielding exhibition—among the infielders—the other was a vast improvement in the twirling corps.

Ray Francis showed the disgraceful small attendance of a hundred odd fans that he is still as left handed as an inverted photo negative of a right handed golfer and that he can still pitch winning ball. Ray gave up seven hits in six innings, but three of the five runs scored in these six innings were the direct or indirect result of errors, one by Brock and one by Cuto.

Love Takes Mound. Then Ruel Love took up the work and his performance was noteworthy. In the four remaining innings three runs and five hits were recorded for Rochester and in the eighth inning with one out and the bases full he tightened and fanned Murphy, pinch hitting for Swaney.

Which all brings us to the situation that the Crackers deserve a more warming attendance today than they have gotten at any stage this year. The fans that have been waiting until they should reach a decent pre-season form may as well start pouring into the gates.

It was the first performance of Schwab, the acquisition to cover first base from the Cincinnati Reds. Schwab turned in a presentable fielding card but fanned twice and socked a single into right field twice in five times at bat.

Frank Welch, the outfielder, continued his lambasting streak and narrowly missed smacking a circuit clout into the left field stands in the fifth inning with two on. The half fell a few feet short of the fence and Welch was held at second. He got two doubles and two singles in six times up.

First Two Hits. The first two innings were hitless, while an error by Cuto put Fleming on in the first. Fleming died on third. In the third Wilson was safe on an walked. Cuto was out on a left-field fly. Schwab was on and Zoeller out at second on a fielder's choice. Welch singled and the first intentional pass of the season was recorded when Wilson moved toward the Rochester dugout and took four straight balls from Harrison, while Haas was at the plate. But that did not save the Indians, for Gilbert, whom Harrison transferred to Haney binged into right field and the game was over.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Follow the Leader.

What's the use? About the time you figure out that a 290 or thereabouts will win the southern open some scribe-hater like Robbie Jones goes and knocks the lid off the burned dove and shoots a 99 upside down. From the present complexion of things it looks like Bobby may have a putt for a total of 203 tonight. After that 66 Friday anything looks possible, except a victory for anyone but Robert Tyre.

A lot of wild guesses are possible and after Bobby's hair-raising performance of Friday the wildness of any guess can only be comparative. Right now our belief is that the winning score will be based on the four rounds made by Bobby Jones. That confines the guessing to the two 18-hole spasms by the leader today, which should be at or about par figures. Giving Bobby one stroke on par for each round his total will be 142, which modest sum added to 138 will make 280 for the winning total.

Doesn't seem possible does it? Nope. But don't give too many strokes above the 280 mark if you are inclined to gamble on the result.

Hard Luck Jones.

Talking about that round of golf in which Robert loafed around the course in four swats less than Mr. Par takes when he is at his best, is like a ham cartoonist trying to retouch a Rembrandt. It was so plagued good that it defies description. It just isn't right, that's all. Bobby should be a more considerate host and go out and kill buzzards instead of other kinds of birds. But he can't do it. He could fall in the lake on No. 10, break his leg, play the rest of the course in a wheel chair with a cane and a croquet ball and still come in around par, if his Friday mood continued.

These Shylocks.

Most of the gold diggers in the tournament feel the same about the "Good, I'm glad Bobby went so well. I hope he wins the cup and if it will make anyone happier Jess Sweetser and Watts Gunn can take second and third places—just so Johnny Farrell gets his hooks in the $4,000 which is dangling from the par tree for the best pro to pick." Does it sound commercial? Maybe, but even golf professionals must live and it takes the old gelt.

Hard Luck Jones Again.

Think back over the times you have watched Bob Jones play golf and remember the times you have seen him get a real break in luck. If you can remember any such time just add to the list the 14th hole on his 66 round at East Lake Friday. He pulled his tee shot to the trees on the left of the fairway and it hit a forest giant with a terrible twang—then came down in the fairway, leaving a perfect open shot for the green. And Bob took advantage of the opening with the remark, "That was hard luck," and he dropped an iron to the green to leave his card unblemished.

Thomas B. Payne is getting old. He must be because he is giving dimes away. Whenever it becomes his duty to mark a ball on the green he does so with a nice new, shiny dime and it is rumored that he goes away and leaves them. Bobby said he made 50 cents on his round today by waiting for Mr. Payne to leave the green then examining the spot where a ball was marked. Business is business, but Bobby better be careful or his amateur standing will be questioned.

Jaycees Pull Through.

The thousands who rush around the East Lake course every day like a lot of marathoners on a jumping jag seem to enjoy the show, and well they should, but it just occurs to us that they may not think of what it costs in effort and intestinal fortitude to make the tournament possible.

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce jumped on a job under the jibes of the wise guys and let us tell you now, they have put it over. It is an assured success financially and with Old Man Weather pulling for the home team all other aspects are taking a rosy tint.

More Threesomes.

There may be those among the tournament managers at East Lake today—by tournament managers we mean the wise ones that attend darn few big tournaments and helped direct none of them, that will find fault with the system of starting off today's contestants in threesomes.

For their benefit let it be explained that there are sixty-eight men left in the running. Pairing them in twosomes and starting them five minutes apart it would take as long as it does to get a messenger boy—or from early morning until well after noon to get them all off. Then lunch would have to be grabbed and the afternoon round started, so that it would be impossible to complete the 36 holes of play in a day. Thus the threesomes.

PAIRINGS, STARTING TIMES FOR FINAL ROUND TODAY

In making the pairings for the final 36 holes of the southern open championship tournament, the tournament committee found it necessary to start the matches threesomes due to the large field of 68 players and the short days at this season of the year. The first trio will tee off at 8:30 this morning.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—The world's second largest sail fish, eight feet two inches, weighing 91 pounds, was caught here today. The fish made 23 leaps clear of the water before it was landed. It was officially weighed and witnessed. C. D. Braden, the fisherman who caught the fish, announced that he would probably have it mounted and given to the Culver Military academy.

ATLANTA 'Y' VOLLEY BALL TEAM BEATEN

Mobile and Kannapolis, N. C., remained tonight as the sole survivors of the winner's bracket of the southern Y. M. C. A. volleyball tournament which got under way at the "Y" Friday. These two teams will meet tomorrow morning to decide which shall meet the survivor of the loser's bracket for the title.

Kannapolis defeated Jacksonville and Atlanta during the day, winning from the former in the morning round and beating the latter this afternoon, 15-2, 15-12.

Mobile won over Chattanooga, Montgomery and Selma, Ala.

As each team is defeated, it is relegated to the loser's bracket, which will fight it out in that rank to see which meets the survivor of the other round.

Three knockouts were recorded in four fights comprising the March batting card of the Georgia Railway and Power company at the power company gym Friday night.

In the principal attraction Happy Smith, lightweight, suffered a badly bumped head as a result of a flooring slam from Bettling Frasier. This untoward incident took place in the fifth canto and the fracas was halted right then and there.

Bud Huckday's corner mates tossed in the white rag in the fourth round of his fight with Kid Karver after Karver had rendered Huckday in a deplorable state.

The only bout that went the limit was the fast-stepping hexameter involving Homer Reid and C. L. Maddox. Reid took the decision.

In the opener Battling Palmer won from Kid Norfolk by slapping him cold in the third round. Both of these worthies were of the unleached type of Americana.

Sandlot Quintets Clash for Title

The North Side Panthers and the Leaders, in the 130-pound division of the Sandlot league, will clash this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Taft hall in the city auditorium for basketball championship of the league.

The Leaders, who used to put J. T. A. before the rest of it, have an impressive record in the tournament which will end with this afternoon's game. The team has met and defeated the Whirlwinds, Tech High Tigers and Grant Park. They are counting on the work of M. Katz, center, and Botley, forward, to bring them through with a win today.

The Panthers have a strong quintet, and have been raising all kinds of disturbances in the tourney. Their two best bets for a victory this afternoon are Bryan Grant and Jack Boykin, forwards.

Crimson Nine Wins Opener, 13 to 0

University, Ala., March 25.—(Special).—Playing its first game against collegiate opposition, the Alabama Crimson Tide handed the Birmingham Southern diamond artists a severe drubbing in a seven-inning game, called because of darkness, 13 to 0.

Hutto and Spetz twirled for the locals, limiting the visitors to a lone bingle.

Captain Tommy Sewell led the Crimson attack with three blows out of five trips to the platter.

The two clubs play here tomorrow with Campbell drawing the hulking assignment for the Captains, and he will probably be opposed by McTrotter. The series was originally scheduled for next week, but was moved up by mutual agreement.

Commercial Loses Opener, 15 to 5

Commercial High school was beaten, 15 to 5, by Douglasville High, in its first baseball game of the season Friday.

The Douglasville batsmen had a big day at home play, and made offerings of McGhee and Aderhold, Typist hurlers, for a total of 11 hits. These timely bingles, coupled with four errors by Commercial, gave the visitors their 15 runs.

Padgett did most of the hitting for Commercial and was a material factor in their harvesting five runs. Commercial secured five hits.

Conn Hurls Jackets To Victory Over Ohio

Tech Sluggers Pound Two Buckeye Pitchers For Total of 14 Safe Knocks.

BY HOWARD EATON.

Coach Kid Clay's heavy hitting Jacket baseball players received quite a workout at the expense of the Ohio State Buckeyes on Grant field, winning the opening game of a two-game series, 14 to 1. The second game is scheduled to start around 2:30 o'clock.

Coach Clay's team did about all that any team could ever hope to do in a seven-inning duel. In the second inning a double play, Smith to Moreland to Brewer, peppered things up a bit and this feat was duplicated in the third by another perfectly executed double killing. Crowley to Moreland to Brewer. The Kid's cohorts ran wild aboard the hassocks, pilfering them at will.

The Jackets loped along until the second inning before starting the fireworks. In the second frame they banged out one run on a single by Brewer, a stolen base and an error by Riehl.

The Buckeyes were held scoreless until the fourth inning when Tarbert singled, Wilderfield walked and Tarbert stole third and came home on a wild throw to first by Conn, trying to catch Wilderfield.

In the fifth inning the Jackets cut loose with a slashing batting attack and counted seven runs before the rush could be stopped. Tressell made an error and the spree started and seven more had crossed the plate and 11 had gone to bat before Smith hit to the pitcher for the last out of the big inning.

The Clay boys rapped the visiting hurlers for a total of 14 safe knocks for as many runs and also played a good game in the field.

Conn hurled one of the best games he has ever pitched, giving up only two hits in the seven frames. He also had a big day with the stick, getting two hits and making five assists. This is the first game Conn has worked this year and it looks like he is in for a big year this season. A triple steal in the fifth was about

SUPPER FOR TWO.

Being assured that the reporters were in no hurry, Lyman frowned carefully at his reminiscences and selected his next leading point. "But what was keeping her father awake nights was that that old director of hers was said to be shooting scenes in Spain, right across the Mediterranean from us. It does seem, nowadays, you can't get any privacy in pictures no matter how far you go from home! And that night, Miss Jayne, was the kind of night I pushed her too hard was likely any minute to hop off in an airplane for whatever lot her old man was shooting on. Good God Almighty, we said, suppose he's slipped over a divorce without our knowing it and they get themselves married in old Madrid! What kind of boob'd I look then? I got so I couldn't hardly swallow a mouthful of food watching every move she was up to!"

"Then along comes an invitation to a big swaggy lunch with a kind of Arab roundup from Sheikh Ilderim—a real sheik, I mean—whose whole tribe pretty near I had been living. Miss Jayne had to go, of course, for the local good will and the publicity and all. But practically the whole French army went right along beside her and I never got a word with her till suddenly she turns round on me, right at dessert, and, 'Oh, I hear,' says she, 'your scenario department's got hold of a script by Henry Horner that's ideal for me. Could you have it sent over so I could see it?'"

"Now this Henry was a young, unknown, no-account continuity writer from the coast I had taken into my scenario department awhile to please her, but I had to eat into him because he got too fresh. He hadn't broken my sleep any, from then on, and I was so taken aback at her having got this dope about him I didn't know how to react. I just told her, 'Somebody's kidding you, young lady. There's never been a script by dear little Horner received in my department of getting the better of me. I'd kick it out as fast as I did Hanky Panks himself.' She answered me, 'You don't know how glad I am to hear you say that, Lyman, smoother than butter. It was right then I had a kind of an uneasy feeling.'"

Lyman attended once more to the duties of a host, but with the air of a man who approaches a crisis. "The very next noon she had such a headache from the sun she had to quit work and drive back to the hotel. Westcott wasn't wanted that afternoon and she took him in her car. But I kept Mack out of it with Andrews, where we were. 'She's up to something,' said I. 'Let her think we're going to watch scenes all afternoon.' We got into Eiskra as close behind as we'd dare follow her. But her suite was already shut up like a tomb with all the blinds lowered and a sign on her door, 'Please Do Not Knock.'"

"Well, I went out onto my balcony to see if I could get a slant on hers. But the evening was down and our end was screened, anyway, with a lot of plants and trained vines. So I thought I'd leave old Mack with his door open down the hall while I look ed round if I saw Westcott loose anywhere and could pump anything out of him. I wanted some smokes, anyhow, and I thought I might as well risk a sunstroke by wandering a turn or two nearer to bazaar and waking up a fellow that kept his kind I use. Coming out from his stall I stopped to give myself a light and happened to glance up the street, away from the hotel toward the town. There came Billy Westcott, sure enough. And with him somebody I took at first glance for the invalid, Miss Jayne. I stepped back inside the stall and as they got nearer I saw it wasn't her, but that everlasting maid of hers, who's almost as small and blonde, too—though a French girl."

"Some raw deal on Billy Westcott's part. I thought it was to be showing himself, even in the afternoon dead hours, with his star's maid, and a blonde at that! And Miss Jayne laid up in her room with a headache! They kept looking back over their shoulders and at first I thought they were afraid of being caught, particularly as the maid was manipulating a veil from her hat over her face. But no; when they'd passed me and got along a way toward the hotel they stopped. I could see they were waiting for somebody to catch up with them. I looked back up the street and there, if you please, stood Dulcie Jayne. Bending over her and holding her hand, with his back to me, stood a tall man in a classy white suit and a Panama hat. I needn't tell you who came into my head. I felt as if he must have zipped over from Spain in a submarine! Then he left her. She joined the other two and, with a fling of some kind of veil round her own face, in they all went to the hotel. So did I later on. And the hotel handed me a surprise all right."

Something seemed to go wrong with Lyman's cigar. He took it out of his mouth, and looked inquiringly at the lighted end, as if astonished that it should be behaving unreasonably; then he resumed it, to find it, to his surprise, said: "It was pay day for our extras; we had about two thousand. Well, gentlemen, my treasurer had never showed up and here was word for me that there was hell to pay in the tent city."

"Now, don't get all heated up about the treasurer, boys, because what was the matter with him was just biting on some yarn about all Mohammedans being prohibitionists. In that belief he'd gone into one of their little cafes and ordered himself a nice cool drink before crossing the desert. Then he got into a rooming house and started cooling off before he'd even taken the pay roll out of the bank it didn't matter. However, we didn't know then and searching parties were out looking for his murdered body all night. I didn't get back myself till so many of the hotel guests were gone to bed the courtyard was almost dark."

"But there was a light, very low, in Dulcie Jayne's room. And while I was standing there, getting a breath of air, if our sheik didn't come on to her balcony, got up regardless in a regular imported ball dress, all silver lace and turquoises and forget-me-nots—the very same dress she wore to the banquet I gave for her the night we sailed! Before I could get a word out she was doped up that way for out comes the maid after her, carrying flowers and a lot of stuff, and they got busy in the corner under the awning behind the vines. I didn't like to come too close because this French trollope had a way of slinging being pretty near the railing that came handy, regardless who it hit on. I knew I certainly had got to see what was behind those vines."

"She and the maid had gone back into the room, but over the rail of the balcony she had left hanging a long light scarf with a silver tassel to it that kind of caught the light. It might have been hanging there to give me the laugh, it looked so near and easy. And I said to myself, 'If I was Douglas Fairbanks I could put right up and have a look in.' However, we can't all be built like acrobats. I decided I would just go up outside her door a minute on the chance there was something to hear. I had to pass old Mack, who was sitting on an ottoman in front of the desk waiting to see if that director we had on our minds would turn up as a guest of the hotel—the tall man I'd seen with Dulcie that afternoon! And pretty near turned her papa's hair white. Time enough to put you on, I thought, when I know something to put you onto. Then, just as I got upstairs and barely had time to dodge her, along comes the maid, sneaking down to take a look where Mack was! And not only was Miss Jayne's door unlocked—it was ajar."

"I couldn't see the golden-haired occupant with my eye glued to the crack. But when I heard her smash a tumbler in the bathroom I stepped right through the suite out onto that balcony. Behind the plants was a round table and on it the sweetest little set-a-tee layout you ever set eyes on. Ice already in the glasses, flowers in a deep dish, even a bowlful of those silly little matches and a taper across it to light the candles. Supper for two!"

BOYS---Here's a Georgia Shoe that's got the world beat!

Boys—here's the latest! Here's the new style in Boys' Shoes—Musc's new "GA" Oxford, in black or tan Scotch grain; equipped with rubber heels and pirate ring brass eyelets, and it has the new college type broad toe; heavy single sole; flipper flange; and saw edge tip—and it's made right here in Georgia; made from sound Georgia hides, from South Georgia, and tanned and manufactured complete right up here in Buford, Ga., about 40 miles from Atlanta.

Even the strong shoe thread used in sewing the leathers in right place is Georgia made. The thread is made in Atlanta by a man who studied shoe thread making by himself, until he had developed a thread that beat the whole country.

This shoe has just come out. They have been working on it a long time at Buford, keeping this new venture a secret until it was just right.

and had been tested and proved to be a world beater at $4.

For years the Bona Allen factories have been making Musc's Army Shoe for Boys. You know about it. (It is $3.75 in sizes 1 to 6). The Musc Army Shoe stands second to none, as you know. Now comes this dress shoe, the latest in style; keen, good-looking, in nobby Scotch grain—and it has got the world beat at $4.

Entirely Georgia-made, of Georgia materials, by Georgia men who have made good shoes for so many years it comes as natural to them as riding a bicycle does to you!

Get into Musc's "GA" Oxford, and be a Georgia booster, up to the minute in style—and don't mind how hard you bang 'em, cause they've got the endurance! And remember—they're only $4 a pair, in sizes 1 to 6. Made just for Musc's—come and get your pair right now!

Today's Matinee Will Feature Great Epic Film

Recommended in the highest terms by the Atlanta better films committee and the Saturday morning matinee committee, which selects the programs for Atlanta's young people, "The Vanishing American" epic film of America's history, will undoubtedly be viewed by an appreciative crowd of juniors and adults this week at the Howard, at 2:30 o'clock. It is considered by the best critics as one of the three or four masterpieces of film progress. Matinee prices are 10 cents for juniors and 25 cents for adults.

"The Vanishing American" deals primarily with the history and conquest of the American Indian, and his gradual disappearance, but much of the first part of the picture tells the stories of past races, now vanished from the face of the earth.

Starting with the first prehistoric man, it shows the conquest of these early tribes by the Cliff Dwellers, their habitations, in turn are completely wiped out by the first Indians, 10,000 of whom are seen attacking the cliff homes, hollowed out from the sides of vast mountains.

Spanish invaders almost completely destroy the Indians in the centuries that follow, and the story is brought up to more recent times, when the famous Kit Carson is asked by the American government to subdue the tribes in this country. Thrilling Indian battles are staged and many scenes of historic interest are shown.

Sympathy for the Indians in their oppression by the white man is stimulated by their patriotic enlistment in the world war, followed by struggles against the oppression of dishonest white agents of the government. Richard Dix, as a young Indian chief, Lois Wilson, as the heroine, and Noah Beery, as the corrupt agent, are among a number of our best actors and actresses taking part in this wonderful story, which is considered to be on a par with "The Ten Commandments," "Ben Hur," "The Birth of a Nation" and other film masterpieces, destined to be handed down to future generations.

Georgia Woman At World Meet On Double Taxes

An expert on the interpretation of the income tax law in America, Miss Anabel Matthews, formerly of Gainesville, Ga., will be one of the three United States delegates at the international conference on double taxation, which will be held at London today, under the auspices of the League of Nations. It was announced here today.

Miss Matthews, who is an attorney in the office of the general counsel of internal revenue at Washington, D. C., sailed for London Wednesday. Friends here were informed. Her associate delegates from this country were said to be Prof. Thomas Adams, of Yale university, and A. Mitchell Carroll, attorney for the federal department of commerce.

The purpose of the conference, it was said, is to make a scientific study of the operation and interpretation of income tax laws in order that the taxpayer shall not be required to pay taxes twice upon such holdings as he may have in subsidiary corporations. Most of the delegates to the conference are said to be governmental officials from countries that now have income tax laws and from those contemplating the passage of such laws.

Miss Matthews is said to have received her appointment through the recommendation of Mr. Adams, who has been acting as an advisory economist of the conference for several years. The Georgia woman attorney has been Mr. Adams' associate and legal adviser in the treasury department for some time, it was said. In requesting her appointment, Mr. Adams stated that Miss Matthews had interpreted under her direction, most of the provisions of the federal income tax laws which would be under study and comparison of the conference, it was said.

"DOPE" BY MAIL

Narcotics Hidden in Magazine Sent Prisoner Here.

Narcotic peddlers have entered the magazine business, according to Jailer Bob Holland of Fulton Tower. When a magazine addressed to W. D. Branch, prisoner in the tower on narcotic charges, was received at the tower with a notice on the front to read a certain page as "you will find it interesting," Jailer Holland turned to this page and found a small package of dope neatly affixed thereon.

The magazine and narcotics were turned over to federal narcotic agents, who are investigating the return address, the magazine having been mailed from Richmond, Va.

Slams Salaams and By Louise Dooky

TWO scarcely important items face this morning with rival claims the first position in this department which are so evenly compelling that I shall have to toss a coin to make a decision.

The international cooking champion wins.

Mme. Genot has issued a challenge from the Parisian stronghold of her popularity as the best cook in a country which ranks her specialty as an art to Mrs. Rosa Lewis, who is apparently as famous in London. Possibly more soon, since one does not go to London to tickle one's palate. Any good cook would stand out. If English cooking equals Parisian, then the British culinary art has mighty power agents.

As will be seen at the start, this department is prejudiced. But where would championships be if folks did not live up for their favorites?

Mrs. Lewis, the British champion (for the sake of a contest it is to be hoped she will stand up better under punishment than her compatriot champions of the prize ring) has announced herself likewise prejudiced. She says she does not like French cooking. But still more incriminating is the character of her main criticism: she says the French are not good chefs because they spend hours at their work and are too exacting.

Phew! Just suppose an American cook had said that. Can't you imagine the jeers that would be heaped back to us about mass production of food—industrial method applied to creative art—and such?

Gallie vs. Afric Art.

MME. GENOT, ruffled by Mrs. Lewis' charges against the French "school," which has been twenty centuries, according to Mme. Genot, building for perfection, then reveals an interesting secret: that she had an interesting bridge of gold across the ocean to Palm Beach, not to speak of the fortune in new times which would have rewarded her had she accepted the Rockefeller patronage. (With artists, of course, we don't say accepted a job with the Rockefellers.)

But the apex of interest in the challenges which are thick in the air, now that Mrs. Lewis has ruffled the battle temperaments, is the suggestion that the Frenchwoman throws down in defiance even of the southern negro who, by the way, has never thought of calling herself a culinary artist. But O those light biscuits, that chicken fried as nobody else knows how, those sublimated waffles, that—But what's the use? Mme. Genot may know her onions, but come, outh, madame: come south. Not Palm Beach. That is just transplanted, canned, which does not know enough to disjoint a frier before cooking.

Some real southern city ought to make a killing with an invitation to stage the championship in London called, I believe, "Dracula." Another theater, the land where real cooking was invented.

Of course, the main lure of seashore contests for female championships would be wanting if the town was inland that staged the bout. Cooking is a hot business under the most ideal circumstances. But cooks have never found it necessary to compromise on clothes. They wear 'em. Competition might be provided the on-lookers, however, in sample morsels of the rival chef-d'oeuvres distributed to the throng.

A War Without an Army.

FLIPPING the coin left to second position an even harder challenge—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt's announcement that the women of the United States are brewing a rebellion against the French fashion trust which will be utterly ruthless.

"It may," she says, "close factories, precipitate the world into bankruptcy. No one has ever asked the price of liberty, and we women shall not shirk."

Now that sounds truly heroic. But my idea is that Mrs. Catt's real struggle is going to be to raise her army. Getting equal suffrage was child's play compared to what she'll have on her hands when she tries to persuade women to discard clothes fashions which are becoming—or they think they are—for clothes standards which are merely economic.

Conquering the Parisian trust after Mrs. Catt assembles her forces—that will be no struggle at all. But to be sure of victory for any army you have got to have your army first.

Perhaps Mrs. Catt would point to the remarkable uniformity in women's hats at the present writing as a harbinger of standardization of the whole of their costume.

But this uniformity exists "at the present writing." Tomorrow half the women may have adopted the spunglass picture hats predicted by Paul Poiret and ridiculed by Mrs. Catt.

The women of America look up to Mrs. Catt's opinions in her own domain. But they are equally and appropriately willing to render, once Poiret the things that are Poiret's.

A Step Too Far.

I'VE left myself very little space for the reported fascist mandate against the importation of French fashions and Parisian models in gowns into Italy.

But I don't need much space to prophesy that Mussolini has at last gone too far. The grave of fascism is unquestionably being dug at this minute with the ruthless spades and shovels of the Italian women's fury.

Where We Fall Short.

THERE are a few lines left after all, which shall be devoted to the aesthetic theme of advertising.

Strong men, so the news from England says, are fainting in the theater with the stress of their emotion over a vamp play now on in London called, I believe, "Dracula." Another theater, the land where real cooking was invented.

It was found to be less trouble than calling on a hospital for emergency aid two or three times during a performance.

And yet we have the benighted idea over here that we know something about the science of theatrical publicity. Injunctions and censorship? Old stuff.

TWO ACQUITTED IN FEDERAL COURT IN BOOZE TRIALS

Two acquittals featured trial Thursday morning of prohibition cases in United States district court.

Clayton Corbin, of Gilder county, charged with making whisky, and M. H. Barnes, charged with possessing two gallons, were acquitted in jury trials.

Corbin, shorter, pleading guilty to possession of a quart of liquor, was fined $10. She already had been fined in the state court. George Spivey was sentenced to two months in jail on a charge of possessing a half gallon of liquor. This was said to have been Spivey's second offense.

SUSPECT INDICTED IN BAGGAGE THEFTS

W. E. Holland, of 44 Wheeler street, who a few days ago was arrested in a pawn shop in possession of valuable baggage on which he was seeking to obtain money and who confessed to police that his wife, a man named Herschel Spratlin and himself had committed a number of thefts from local hotels, was indicted Friday by the Fulton county grand jury on a charge of larceny from the house.

Holland's scheme was to loot hotel rooms while the guests were out, obtaining a pass key from an unsuspecting hotel clerk through the boldness of his approach, it was declared.

Five suit cases and travelling bags and a quantity of clothing were found in Holland's home by Detectives McKibben and Mullen, of a national detective agency, who placed Holland under arrest. No date for trial has been set.

Involved Rituals Feature

ANNOIT THEMSELVES AND FAST BEFORE FISHING

Lives of Nootka Indians

Chicago, March 25.—(AP)—Before the Nootka Indian, who lives on the west coast of Vancouver island, goes out to catch a mess of fish, he annoits himself with unguents and oils, fasts for a time and carries out a complicated ritual which he believes will bring success to his venture.

The primitive people, Dr. E. Sapir, of the University of Chicago, today told the central section of the American Anthropological association, preceded almost every common act by an involved ritual.

"This belief in the occult or supernatural manner of controlling events forms an anthropological question which the scientific world knows little about," he said.

The ceremony preceding the harpooning of a whale is extremely complicated. It lasts for months and, among other things, consists of fasts for a four-day stretch, building of a canoe and canoe to be used. The warrior who is to perform the task also annoits himself with hemlock branches.

If, after all that, his success in whole hunting is indifferent, he tries another ritual.

The entire procedure is called "annoiing," which means "to make oneself unclean," usually has its own methods and they are scrupulously passed down to succeeding generations.

There must be "omish" for getting codfish with hooks; for catching halibut, digging bait, making lures, getting wealth, for finding a bear's den and other common acts of primitive living.

The ritual usually starts out with the chanting of a song, such as:
"Look down on me, O chief,
"Cause me to be alive."

The gathering, which will conclude tomorrow, will make plans for extensive archaeological explorations in the middle western states, and the efforts are expected to be coordinated with the help of the National Research council, Washington.

BIG MOVIE MERGER

IS CONSUMMATED

New York, March 25.—(United News).—The leading figures of the moving picture world—William S. Fox and S. L. Rothafel ("Roxy") joined hands Friday in a new movie merger of national magnitude.

Negotiations for the purchase of Roxy, Inc., by the Fox film corporation, which had been under way for the last six months, were completed and the purchase price was said by Fox to be in the neighborhood of $15,000,000.

Under the new arrangement Roxy will continue his personal supervision of the new Roxy theater in New York and two new ones to be constructed here, and, in addition, will act in an advisory capacity for a chain of Fox theaters to be built throughout the country.
